

Wolverines win team title at NCAA Championships

The University of Michigan won its fourth NCAA men's team title and first since 1999, posting a team score of 360.500 at the 2010 NCAA Men's Gymnastics Championships held at the United States Military Academy in West Point, N.Y., April 15-17. The Wolverines' Chris Cameron, a member of the U.S. senior national team, won the all-around title.

Michigan edged defending national champion Stanford University, 360.500 to 359.800 to take the team crown. The University of Oklahoma placed third (357.050).

Michigan scored the top mark on high bar (58.650) and Stanford and Oklahoma tied for the top honors on floor exercise (61.650). Ohio State recorded the top score on rings at 59.900. Stanford posted the highest mark on parallel bars at 59.700. Oklahoma earned the top team scores on vault (64.200) and pommel horse (58.250).

The evening's competition was hindered by an equipment malfunction when one of the still rings broke during University of Illinois' Tyler Williamson's routine in the third rotation. Equipment officials took nearly 40 minutes to replace the apparatus.

In the all-around, Cameron posted a career best score of 90.500 to finish ahead of 2009 all-around champion Steven Legendre of Oklahoma (88.950). His Michigan teammate Mel Anton Santander (88.900) took third.

University of Michigan Head Coach Kurt

Golder said, "I'm as happy as anyone can possibly be. The meet went as planned. It wasn't error-free but it was close and the guys handled adversity very well. Chris' (Cameron) winning the all-around was no surprise to me. He's been on a great streak for more than a year now. And, Mel Anton Santander finished third all-around and was phenomenal."

During event finals, Legendre won his third consecutive floor exercise title with a 16.100, edging Stanford's Eddie Penev by one tenth of a point (16.000). Chad Wiest of the University of Illinois finished in third place with 15.725.

On pommel horse, Oklahoma's Alex Naddour won his first event title with a 15.425. University of California-Berkeley's Glen Ishino scored 15.150 to take second. Steven Spencer of Ohio State University finished in third with a 15.125.

OSU's Brandon Wynn finished on top on still rings, scoring a 15.900. Only 25-hundredths of a point separated second-place-finisher Williamson (15.150) and Tim Gentry of Stanford (15.125).

Penev won the vault title with (16.450). Jake Dalton of Oklahoma finished second (16.100), just ahead of Stanford's Josh Dixon (16.050).

The parallel bar title went to Stanford's Ryan Lieberman (15.100), who beat Santander by five-hundredths of a point (15.050). Oklahoma's Corey English finished in third (14.900).

UCLA Bruins Win Sixth Title at NCAA Championships

The University of California-Los Angeles won its sixth NCAA women's team title at the 2010 NCAA Gymnastics Championships held on the University of Florida campus in Gainesville, April 23.

Coach Val Kondos-Field was asked to comment on her team's win and she said, "I know as coaches we all like to say how great our teams are, but I can't remember in my 29 years at UCLA having a team that 'bought in' from day one. They bought into every little thing that we asked them to do, including taking ownership of your team." She added, "The team sacrificed but sacrifice wasn't a negative word, it was a positive word. We knew, regardless of where we finished, if we did it right and did it with integrity, we would have no regrets."

UCLA, who earned the highest team semifinal score, posted 197.725 to win the national team title. The University of Oklahoma wrapped up its first appearance in the Super Six by finishing in second place, edging out the University of Alabama, 197.250 to 197.225. Stanford University was fourth (197.100), meet-host University of Florida finished fifth (197.000), and nine-time national champion University of Utah finished sixth at 196.225.

"Looking back on the whole thing, it's so exciting," said Li, who posted three 9.9 scores. "We talked as a team today and we decided we were just going to have fun and that's how we've been the whole season. We were in our own Bruin bubble and we brought that Bruin bubble to Florida. It's what we trained and what we prepared for. We just had fun out there."

UCLA scored the top marks on vault (49.475), beam (49.375) and floor (49.550). Alabama recorded the highest bars total, without anchor Ashley Pries, at 49.425.

In the final rotation, five squads eclipsed the 197.000 mark for the first time in NCAA team finals history. The NCAA Women's Gymnastics Championships began with a 12-team field and 19 individual athletes that advanced from six NCAA Regional Championships. The top three teams from each semifinal advanced to the Super Six team finals.

In the all-around, which was determined during team preliminary competition, Susan Jackson won Louisiana State University's first NCAA all-around title when she earned the day's highest total mark of 39.625. Casey Jo Magee of the University of Arkansas was second in the all-around at 39.550. Stanford's Carly Janiga was third at 39.525.

The Bruins captured two more event finals with Vanessa Zamarripa winning vault (9.925) and Brittanni McCullough winning floor (9.9375). The bars title went to Janiga (9.9375) and the beam title went to Jackson (9.9625). ✕
