The Olympic Selection Committee met throughout the week prior to the meeting following Day 2 of competition. The first meeting was held Thursday, June 24 to discuss the data from previous competitions and the athletes' performances during Olympic Trials training week to date. In addition, they discussed the order of operations for selection and required results from each day of competition at Olympic Trials. They met for the second time following Day 1 of competition on Friday, June 25 to simulate the selection process.

The Committee met a third time on Saturday, June 26 to review the process from Day 1 and discussed possible scenarios that may occur during Day 2 that could affect selection. During this meeting, the Committee analyzed Day 1 results. In addition, domestic and international competition experience and results were discussed.

Summary of the Meeting held on Sunday, June 27, 2021

The Committee and the Independent Observer were present, along with the USA Gymnastics VP of Women's Program.

The discussion started with the confirmation of the automatic selected spots for the 4-person team according to Section 1.3.1.a of the Olympic Selection Procedures.

Simone Biles and Sunisa Lee both secured an automatic selection by placing first and second respectively in the final all-around results at the 2021 Olympic Trials.

Two spots remained on the 4-person team to be named by the Committee using discretionary selection listed in Section 2.2.

The Committee turned to the selection of the 4-person team by focusing on the unweighted 4-up, 3-count team score scenarios. The Committee evaluated all athletes who were identified within the top eight scoring scenarios, as they felt that the strongest team would come from those athletes. Nine-time National Team Member Jordan Chiles was listed as a team member in all eight scoring scenarios. That, combined with her consistency throughout the 2021 season resulted in selecting Jordan to the 4-person team.

After a review of all other athletes listed in the top eight scoring scenarios, the final spot on the 4-person team came down to a discussion between Grace McCallum and MyKayla Skinner, who finished fourth and fifth, respectively, in the final all-around results at the 2021 Olympic Trials.

In the Best Score Report, MyKayla shows up in the highest team scoring scenario while Grace shows up in the fourth highest scenario with a difference of 0.267 between the two. Using the final scores, MyKayla's scores would contribute to the team score on one event, while Grace's scores would contribute to the team score on two events. Grace demonstrated consistency and resilience across both days of competition at the Olympic Trials, hitting all eight routines. In addition, her past international experience and success as a member of the 2018 and 2019 World Championship Gold-Medal Teams contributed to the committee's final decision.

The Committee selected Grace McCallum to the Tokyo Olympic Team.

The Committee moved to discuss to the individual +1 NOC quota place to be selected. The Committee used the discretionary criteria listed in Section 2.2 as a basis of discussion. The Individual Event Final results as well as the 2-vault average results were reviewed. The Committee determined that MyKayla Skinner was the athlete with the greatest medal potential based on her Vault performances scoring 15.000 or higher consistently, coupled with her fifth-place all-around ranking in the final results from Olympic Trials. In addition, MyKayla's international competitiveness and experience along with her high vault D-scores, compared to the top competitors from other countries, helped the Committee determine that she would be selected to the individual +1 NOC quota place to Tokyo.

Jade Carey will represent Team USA by earning the second +1 quota place by name via Criteria 5 of the Olympic Qualification Procedures found here -

https://www.gymnastics.sport/publicdir/rules/files/en\_Olympic%20Qualification%20System%20Tokyo%202020%20ART.pdf.

After the team and the two +1 NOC quota place selections, a new set of 4-3 team scoring scenarios were produced with the six named Olympic Team athletes removed from the results.

The highest scoring team from the new scenarios featured experienced athletes, and each athlete could be used to replace either one or all Olympic Team members if the situation were presented prior to competition in Tokyo.

The Committee selected Kayla DiCello, Kara Eaker, Emma Malabuyo, and Leanne Wong as the replacement athletes for Tokyo.

Once the selection for Tokyo was complete, the High-Performance Director, IEC Representative, Athlete Representative, and Vice President left the room to meet with all athletes and coaches and disclosed the team members, the two +1 Individual quota places and replacement athletes for Tokyo. Those athletes were then announced live to the audience.

I confirm that, to the best of my knowledge, information, and belief, this report accurately reflects the June 27, 2021 meeting of the Women's Olympic Selection Committee for the selection of the 2020 Olympic Team, two +1 quota places, and replacement athletes.
